Assignments

A shorter research essay (1000 words), and a longer research essay (2000-2500 words) will be submitted. Each writing assignment will be completed in multiple stages for instructor feedback. All writing assignments must be completed to pass the course.

This course operates on the premise that the more we write, and the more feedback we get on our writing, the better our writing becomes.

As well as your main assignments, there will be two short writing tasks throughout the term, comprising 20% of your final grade (10% each). These tasks will take the form of online postings of three or four good paragraphs. These tasks, as well as your personal reflection, references, outline, and thesis, will be graded simply out of 100 on the following basis:

0 - inadequate, plagiarized or missed assignment.

50 - bare minimum pass.

75- solidly meets requirements

100 - exceptionally good response

While your longer writing assignments will be graded fully according to the rubric found on Moodle, the philosophy behind these short online writing tasks is to simply keep us writing in a short, structured, and frequent way. You will receive quick feedback on these tasks, but the most detailed writing feedback will be given in person, during our scheduled individual conferencing sessions.

Tests

Students will write regular activities and have discussions. There will be a mid-term. There will be a final exam consisting of a summary/response.
