COURSE CALENDAR DESCRIPTION

Explores the history of northern research, practical and ethical aspects of conducting and reporting research in the sciences and the humanities, and the state of contemporary northern research in a variety of disciplines.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Using a multidisciplinary approach, Research in the North considers the nature of knowledge and research, and examines the history of northern research, practical and ethical aspects of conducting and reporting research in the sciences and the humanities, and the state of contemporary northern research in a variety of disciplines.

The aim is to have you come to a broad understanding of research context, methods and principles and develop an awareness and familiarity with key northern research issues and resources. Practical assignments aim to improve your ability to research and write an original, short research paper and other academic and non-academic products and to be able to relate these to your own research and professional interests.

NOST 200 is a core-course option of the Northern Studies diploma programs and will also serve as a NOST or a general elective for Yukon College diplomas or certificates.

PREREQUISITES

This course assumes you have some post-secondary experience. Second-year standing is highly recommended.

EQUIVALENCY OR TRANSFERABILITY

This information refers to the current course and is taken from the BC Transfer Guide, November 2016. Please consult bctransferguide.ca for the complete list of transferability that includes older versions of this course. This course is accepted for transfer by other institutions on a case-by-case basis.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon successful completion of the course, students will be able to

- A. Outline and summarize the main historical and academic phases and themes of research in the North;
- B. Explain the primary causes, and nature and implications of contemporary conflict and partnership in northern research;
- C. Describe and explain the role(s) of research ethics;
- D. Report and explain the results of research or analysis in a variety of formats;

- E. Analyze and summarize a variety of academic products; and
- F. Design and complete a small-scale original research project and write it up.

COURSE FORMAT

NOST 200 is primarily a seminar course, with some flipped or flex classes as may be required, augmented variously by lectures, guest speakers, student presentations, and field visits or working trips to local libraries, the territorial archives, the MacBride Museum, or other research facilities.

RELATED COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Students will be asked to sign a waiver for off-campus activities. The visit to the MacBride Museum will require you to pay admission (under $10) if not a member.

ASSESSMENTS

The model of student assignments and assessments is different from what you might have encountered in other courses. There is a framework of required assignments but students will define the specific work they will do to complete them.

Attendance & Participation

NOST 200 meets only once a week, so attendance is crucial. Furthermore, as a seminar with a small number of participants, your engaged participation is necessary for us to have fun with and benefit from this course. This is not a gradable category.

Assignments

There are four assignments in NOST 200. The first is an information-gathering and reporting exercise that explores an aspect of the background and state of research in a selected field or locale in the North.

The second assignment develops practical and transferable knowledge of research ethics. Students have the alternative of completing the TCPS-2 online tutorial (and writing a short reflection paper) or writing a paper dealing with some aspect of the ethical conduct of research in the North.

The third assignment asks students to investigate a second aspect of northern research. The reporting of this work may be accomplished with a paper but other approaches are possible, including alternative media product, annotated bibliography, blog or blog-response cycle, book review, review article, oral or static presentation, reflective journal sequence, etc.

The largest assignment in this course involves conducting and reporting authentic research as part of a NOST200 research project we develop for the course.

Element	Weight
Research background assignment (outcomes A, B, D, E)	10%
TCPS2 tutorial and reflection paper (15% +10%) or alternative ethics in northern research project/paper (25%) (outcomes B, C, D, E)	25%
Topic assignment (outcomes A, B, C, E)	20%
Research and report (outcomes C, E, F)	35%
Summary activity (outcomes D, F)	10%
Total	100%

Other

A summary activity serves as a final check-in on the project in the form of an in-class short oral report, portfolio or seminar presentation.

EVALUATION

REQUIRED TEXTBOOK AND MATERIALS

There is no specific textbook for this course.

Relevant readings and web materials will be referred to in class and will be available (as far as is practical) on the class site on Yukon College’s LMS in yukoncollege.me.

ACADEMIC AND STUDENT CONDUCT

Information on academic standing and student rights and responsibilities can be found in the current Academic Regulations that are posted on the Student Services/ Admissions & Registration web page.

Attendance is integral to student success. Discussion and participation are particularly important in this class, and students are expected to attend regularly and punctually. If you miss a class, it is your responsibility to find out what you missed and to complete any work assigned.

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is a serious academic offence. Plagiarism occurs when students present the words of someone else as their own. Plagiarism can be the deliberate use of a whole piece of another person’s writing, but more frequently it occurs when students fail to acknowledge and document sources from which they have taken material. Whenever the words, research or ideas of others are directly quoted or paraphrased, they must be documented according to an accepted manuscript style (e.g., APA, CSE, MLA, etc.). Resubmitting a paper which has previously received credit is also considered plagiarism. Students who plagiarize material for assignments will receive a mark of zero (F) on the assignment and may fail the course. Plagiarism may also result in dismissal from a program of study or the College.

YUKON FIRST NATIONS CORE COMPETENCY

Yukon College recognizes that a greater understanding and awareness of Yukon First Nations history, culture and journey towards self-determination will help to build positive relationships among all Yukon citizens. As a result, to graduate from ANY Yukon College program, you will be required to achieve core competency in knowledge of Yukon First Nations. For details, please see www.yukoncollege.yk.ca/yfnccr.

ACADEMIC ACCOMMODATION

Reasonable accommodations are available for students requiring an academic accommodation to fully participate in this class. These accommodations are available for students with a documented disability, chronic condition or any other grounds specified in Section 8.0 of the Yukon College Academic Regulations (available on the Yukon College website). It is the student's responsibility to seek these accommodations. If a student requires an academic accommodation, he/she should contact the Learning Assistance Centre (LAC) at (867) 668-8785 or lassist@yukoncollege.yk.ca.
