COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course introduces students to the evolution of Indigenous governance and modern treaty making from pan-Canadian perspectives, and with a particular focus on Yukon First Nations' experiences. Central themes will examine Indigenous governance inside and outside of the modern treaty context; intergovernmental relations; as well as the tensions between Indigenous worldviews and ways of knowing, and western bureaucratic processes and perspectives. In addition, course content will explore the historical evolution of Indigenous-government relations across the country by examining case law and the successes and challenges of land claims implementation. The intent of this course is to honour and recognize how far Indigenous people have come and how hard they have fought for self-determination, and protection of their lands, languages and cultures.

PREREQUISITES

None.

RELATED COURSE REQUIREMENTS

FNGA 101 is a fully online course; therefore, students must have their own computer and internet connection and be able to navigate current word-processing, email, and web-conferencing software. Students must have the ability to record video.

EQUIVALENCY OR TRANSFERABILITY

This course is recently re-developed, and its transferability is still being evaluated. Receiving institutions always determine course transferability. Further information and assistance with transfers may be available from the School of Liberal Arts.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon successful completion of the course, students will be able to:

- Recognize and honour the importance of Indigenous worldviews, values, and legal and political traditions as they form the foundation of Indigenous governance.
- Critically reflect on the history and evolution of treaty making in Canada and the ongoing legacies of colonialism.
- Compare and contrast treaties, land claims and self-government agreements, and assess their impacts on intergovernmental relations and federalism in Canada.
- Identify and describe how key legal decisions and government policy have impacted Indigenous governance and treaty making in Canada.
- Explore and appreciate the unique context and history of land claims and self-government in Yukon, and how they have transformed communities.
- Examine contemporary issues, including the benefits, controversies and tensions, related to modern treaties, Indigenous governance and self-determination.
- Practice and apply research and writing skills to effectively communicate concepts of Indigenous governance to both general and academic audiences.

COURSE FORMAT

Fully online (asynchronous with scheduled deliverables) via Yukon University's Learning Management System (Moodle). There are no regular class meetings, but the instructor may schedule online Q&A/check in sessions for students. There will also be weekly scheduled office hours specifically for this course, where students can join together on Zoom for discussions and to ask questions. Although all students will complete the same modules of work at the same time, they may log-in and complete the work at any time during the week.

ASSESSMENTS & ENGAGEMENT:

Online activities/contributions (25%)

Students will participate in two short online quizzes consisting of multiple choice, true/false, and short answer (one- or two-word answers). Each quiz will be worth 5%. Students will also engage in two sets of video discussion posts using Flipgrid, a video discussion app. Each Flipgrid video post will be worth 5% each and 5% will be allotted for response posts and engagement (for a total of 15%). The total of all online activities/contributions will make up 25% of the final course grade. More details on the quizzes and video discussions, including dates, will be provided in Moodle.

Journals (30%)

Using a set of broad prompts provided in Moodle, students will be required to complete 8 journal entries throughout the 13-week semester. The course is broken up into 4 modules:

- Module 1: Wk 1
- Module 2: Wks 2-5
- Module 3: Wks 6-10
- Module 4: Wks 11-13

For Modules 2-4, you must complete a min. of 2 journal entries per module but students can choose which weeks to complete them. By the end of the course, students must have completed 8 entries in total. The journals will only be read by you and the instructor.

The journals will be assessed half-way through the semester and again at the end of the course. A total of 15% of your grade for the journals will be self-assessed and the other 15% will be assessed by the instructor. More details will be provided in Moodle.

Modern Treaty FAQ Handout (20%)

For this assignment, students will compile a 2-3 page handout of Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) about one of the modern treaties signed in Canada. These handouts are intended to be accessible to the public so they should use clear language and visuals.

Each student will submit their own unique FAQ handout, BUT the research will be done in small groups of 3-4 people. Each group will be assigned a specific land claims agreement to focus on.

You will submit two drafts of your FAQ: a rough draft of the written content will be submitted for feedback from the instructor (worth 10%) and then a final draft will be submitted (worth 10%). As these are intended to be shared, the FAQs will be distributed to your fellow classmates after they have been submitted for grading, so you can learn from each other about the different agreements.

Final Research Paper (25%)

Students will submit a final research paper on a topic of their choice. Topics must be approved by the instructor in advance. Students may choose a topic from one of the weekly themes or any other topic related to Indigenous governance and modern treaty making in Canada. Please ensure that you select a topic that is focused and not too broad.

This assignment is broken into two parts for a total of 30% of your final mark. Part 1 includes a thesis statement, outline and bibliography containing a min. of 5 citations (worth 5%). Part 2 is a traditional academic research paper (worth 20%). The research paper must be a minimum of 1200 words and no more than 1600 words (excluding your title page and bibliography). Anything outside of the word limit will be docked marks. Detailed instructions will be provided on the course Moodle page. Students should read the research paper instructions and grading rubric carefully, so they are aware of the expectations.

Late Assignments

Late penalties will be given on all assignments, except for lateness due to documented medical reasons or if previous arrangements have been made with the instructor in advance of the due date. You will have 5% of your assignment grade deducted per day, for up to 7 days (for a maximum of 35%). In extenuating circumstances, students are expected to communicate their situation and needs to their instructor in a timely manner. The instructor and student will then co-determine alternative deadlines and expectations for completing assignments.

EVALUATION:

Online activities/contributions	25%
Journals	30%
Modern Treaty FAQ Handout	20%

ACADEMIC AND STUDENT CONDUCT

Information on academic standing and student rights and responsibilities can be found in the current Academic Regulations that are posted on the Student Services/ Admissions &

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is a serious academic offence. Plagiarism occurs when a student submits work for credit that includes the words, ideas, or data of others, without citing the source from which the material is taken. Plagiarism can be the deliberate use of a whole piece of work, but more frequently it occurs when students fail to acknowledge and document sources from which they have taken material according to an accepted manuscript style (e.g., APA, CSE, MLA, etc.). Students may use sources which are public domain or licensed under Creative Commons; however, academic documentation standards must still be followed. Except with explicit permission of the instructor, resubmitting work which has previously received credit is also considered plagiarism. Students who plagiarize material for assignments will receive a mark of zero (F) on the assignment and may fail the course. Plagiarism may also result in dismissal from a program of study or the University.

YUKON FIRST NATIONS CORE COMPETENCY

Yukon University recognizes that a greater understanding and awareness of Yukon First Nations history, culture and journey towards self-determination will help to build positive relationships among all Yukon citizens. As a result, to graduate from ANY Yukon University program, you will be required to achieve core competency in knowledge of Yukon First Nations. For details, please see www.yukonu.ca/yfnccr.
