

Join the Yukon University Animal Care Committee!

Do you have a keen interest in animal welfare and ethical practices for their use in research and teaching? Do you feel that responsible and caring treatment of animals for research and teaching purposes is important? If so, we invite you to apply to become a community member on the Yukon University Animal Care Committee.

As a community member, you represent community interests, opinions, and concerns regarding animal-based research and teaching. You would provide a required perspective and valuable insights to support decision-making, address policy requirements, and participate in the review of animal use applications.

On this committee, you will have the opportunity to:

- Support Reviews: Your input will help shape ethical considerations and guidelines for animal research and teaching at Yukon University, influencing practices and policies that govern our institution.
- Advocate for Animal Welfare: You will be an advocate for the well-being and ethical treatment of animals in research and teaching. You will help raise awareness and promote responsible practices both within the university and the broader community.
- Collaborate with Experts: Join meaningful discussions and collaborate with researchers, faculty members, veterinarians, and other professionals in the field of animal care. Your contributions will be valued and respected as an integral part of the decision-making process.
- Contribute to Science and Society: By ensuring the highest standards of animal welfare, you will be contributing to the advancement of scientific knowledge and fostering a culture of responsible research, benefiting both academia and society at large.
- Expand Your Network: Join other individuals who share your passion for animal welfare and ethical science. Build connections, learn from experts in the field, and create relationships with like-minded individuals.

To express your interest or learn more about becoming a community representative, visit the YukonU website <https://www.yukonu.ca/research/our-services/animal-care> or contact Valoree Walker at ywalker@yukonu.ca.

We look forward to hearing from you!
